ABOUT ME

I was 15 years old when I first contemplated suicide. While I didn't experience much beyond typical teenage drama, I found myself living in darkness. I had no direction and couldn't see how my life had meaning. It wasn't until I found my identity in Christ that I began to understand what it meant to live purposefully. At the age of 24, I wrote my first book The Black Girl's Guide to Living on Purpose and have been encouraging women to live intentionally ever since.

In 2016, I founded Black Girls with Purpose, a movement creating offline and online spaces for women of color to connect. We do that through our books, merchandise, virtual and live events.

I launched our podcast in 2018 and since its inception we've had 16K downloads from wone all over the country.
